

PRESENTED BY IEEE TAMU

What is TAMUmake?

TAMUmake is a hardware focused hackathon hosted by the Texas A&M University chapter of IEEE. Over 24 hours, students from around the state are provided the opportunity to collaborate on an innovative technical solution by utilizing and developing their skills as creators.

How it's different

TAMUmake serves as a buildathon, and so we necessitate an hardware component to contestant designs. We hope to engage our students in hands-on applications of principles learned in the classroom, strengthening their confidence while deepening their understanding of real-world technical applications.

We are committed to providing this collaborative learning experience to all students regardless of major, level of experience, or university. Our goal is to ensure all participants gain something from this experience and have fun while doing so.

Why Sponsor?

Sponsoring TAMUmake is a great way for your company to engage with creative and driven students from Texas A&M University as well as other universities in Texas. As a sponsor, you would have the opportunity to:

- Showcase your company and its culture, while educating students on the work-life and employment opportunities at your company
- Connect with the students leading their departments in Electrical Engineering, Computer Engineering, Computer Science, and many others
- Engage with students as they demonstrate their passion and skills
- Educate and mentor contestants as they exercise the design process
